CUT OUT EIGHTY PER CENT OF THE JOBS AND NINETY-FIVE PER CENT OF THE POLITICIANS

"The best beginning of a campaign in years," was the judgment of those who attended the organization meeting of the Washoe County Republican club at Harmony hall, says the Reno Gazette.

With over 100 Republicans present, the plans for the ante-election period and suggestions for improving conditions in the state were discussed with much earnestness. Three informal addresses of note were made, these being by Sam Platt, candidate for the United States senate; George Wingfield, candidate for the state senate, and Frank Bell, pioneer resident, old-time Republican and former governor of Nevada. In addition there were interchanges of ideas which emphasized the feeling of harmony and optimism that pervaded the meeting.

Sam Platt, candidate for United States senator, made an address when called upon by President Morehouse, which drew loud applause. His remarks were upon the line of suggesting harmony in forward strides for uplifting state and nation. "We go into this campaign," he said, "with the knowledge that every man in Nevada, of whatever political faith, is offered an opportunity to unite with us to rehabilitate the state of Nevada and make it prosperous. The defections from the Republican party last campaign were of inestimable benefit. By this means certain abuses have been corrected and the party stands reinvigorated and united. The Republican party will rule, not thwarted, hampered or hindered by errors or abuses, and will bring the American government to the highest pinnacle of stability and success. The Progressives who left the party are not to be abused. They followed convictions and helped the Republican party to purify itself. They are asked to join us and well come in a great movement to rehabilitate state and nation. If I read the signs aright, there are not only scores, but hundreds of Democrats in Nevada who will unite with us, leaving their own party because they believe the government in power is not in accordance with Democratic principles or desires."

Discusses Tax Commission. Referring to George Wingfield's candidacy for the state senate, Senator Morehouse declared it to be a unique incident in the political history of the United States. In his short address, Wingfield discussed the tax commission as an issue which he said might be raised by unscrupulous demagogues in an altogether false light and not in accordance with the facts.

"This is quite unexpected, or was yesterday at 2 o'clock," he said. "It was my intention to keep out of politics, but someone must take an interest and play the game. Herb Humphrey had suggested Mr. Moffat for lieutenant-governor, and it came as a surprise to me, when in San Francisco, I was shown a telegram that Humphrey had declared himself for lieutenant-governor. I consider it great good fortune that he will run for the office."

"They came to me, suggesting that I run for the state senate, and I refused, but they said someone had to do it. 'My time,' I said, 'is worth $10,000 or $15,000 a month to me, and I can't afford it. But they came to me again and said I had to go, and I said, 'let 'er go,' and I'm going right down the line."

Helped Get Commission.

"I have a black book, full of information, and if I go up to the senate I will know where to cut out a few unnecessary. The day of the demagogue and hypocrite is past. They have begun to say, 'The big men of the state are getting together to grind out the lives of the little fellows.' Those statements are the work of the demagogue. They say we will oppose the tax commission. The hypocrite and the demagogue say that, too. I was one of the three who framed the plan for the tax commission. Newlands, Oddie and myself worked it out. They say the cattle men are trying to get off easier. Right in the meeting at Elko Herb Humphrey got up, when they asked what taxation figure the cattle men thought was right, and he said he would be willing to be taxed $35 a head for his cattle. Did the commissioners accept his figure? No. They were catering to the little fellows and they were afraid they would lose their jobs. They put the cattle assessment at $20 a head.

"I am in favor of the tax commission, but the method of work needs to be reformed. There should be a commission of five men with the work of various departments divided among them. They should have expert help and ought to have about half the appropriation now allotted. A different method would put a burden of responsibility on somebody, where now it rests on nobody. But we will never get it by the political game unless those who pay the bills take hold."

Cut Out Politicians. "We have written at all the new things, and it is time to begin eliminating some of those which are unsuccessful. The primary law is a farce. We see it in Washoe county today. Each party boosts for the weak man in the opposing party and nobody takes any responsibility for candidates. We have been practicing things not practicable and government has been in the hands of the incompetent and inexperienced. If a man is popular he is elected, and trading and creation of political jobs go on. We should cut out about 80 per cent of the jobs and 95 per cent of the politicians and we would get along better."

Former Governor Frank Bell expressed the greatest satisfaction with the turn affairs have taken, saying that it presages a return to the old days when men of affairs took an interest in political affairs. "Up to about eight years ago," he said, "we used to get able men in the legislature and in the state offices. Since then we have had men ask for support who didn't know east from west and who hadn't ever paid their poll tax. And some of them were elected. The constitution means nothing to those men. I have been heartily disgusted at the way things
